Executives-in-Residence

An Executive or Entrepreneur in Residence (EIR) is a distinguished senior executive who volunteers to share their expertise with the Babson College community. These executives provide a range of services to faculty, students, and administration that support programs and courses and are also ambassadors for the College. EIRs are utilized by a number of stakeholders within the Babson College Community. These stakeholders include the Graduate Center for Career Development (CCD), Center for Women’s Leadership (CWL), Graduate Office of Experiential Learning (OEL), Babson College Fund and Cutler Center for Finance and Investments and the Arthur M. Blank Center for Entrepreneurship. The EIR program is managed by the Graduate Office of Experiential Learning.

Graduate Center for Career Development (Contact Lesley Day, CCD Coordinator at X5982)

Frank Dodge:
- Software industry pioneer Frank Dodge was one of the first entrepreneurs to develop the packaged software concept. Frank served as President and Chief Executive Officer of McCormick & Dodge, a mainframe software company he co-founded in 1969, building the business to approximately $180 million in revenues and 1,800 employees. As an Executive-in-Residence, Frank has advised MBA students and faculty regarding self-assessment, career change, interviewing, compensation and equity negotiation. As a speaker, he has participated in many college events. Frank has been an advisor for the Business Consulting Alliance Program, for the MBA Management Consulting Field Experience, and the Kauffman Entrepreneur Internship Program.

Joseph Kelley
- With over thirty-two years as an executive, board member, and consultant in the telecommunications industry, Joe Kelley brings a number of strong professional relationships to the Babson College community. Joe is currently President of East Haven Associates. As an Executive in Residence at Babson College, Joe has assisted the Management Consulting Field Experience and Business Consulting Alliance Programs by recruiting companies and interviewing MBA candidates. He serves as a project advisor for these programs as well as for the Kauffman Entrepreneur Internship Program. Joe also serves as a guest lecturer, sharing his telecommunications industry expertise.

Ashley Carneal
- Ashley’s work interests and experience have helped her be a leader in Brand Marketing and Product Management. As a Brand Manager for Hasbro she led a successfully established a multi-product position in the electronics portfolio, Tiger Electronics. Her work experience includes core marketing projects and strategy for Procter and Gamble, Gillette, and Ocean Spray. Ashley has been active in Babson’s Alumni Mentor Program, Coaching for Leadership and Development, and is a member of the Career Affinity Group. In her career she has drawn on a balance of qualitative and quantitative resources to understand brand marketing. This dualism is also manifested in her personal interests as she enjoys the active outdoor activities such as hiking, snowboarding, and mountain biking and balances the active interests with music, photography, and reading. Ashley brings to her role an experience and her knowledge will assist students in learning how to build and utilize their network. She has a Babson MBA and did her undergraduate work at Rutgers University.
George Lee

- George is a senior executive with demonstrated leadership in assessment and management of chemical and materials technical initiatives. He is skilled in the creation of interdisciplinary new product development programs that effectively bring industry changing technology to market. Dr. Lee managed and directed Research and Development programs for Dow Chemical Company and for the Chomerics Division of Parker Hannifin Corporation. He is an effective communicator of technology development to upper management and customers. Dr. Lee has a BA from Williams College and a Ph.D. in Organic Chemistry from the University of Colorado.

Ron Lemke

- Ron Lemke has over 35 years of experience as a marketing and operating executive in consumer products, packaging and office technology companies. He is currently an Operating Partner and advisor to a Private Equity firm focused on acquiring middle market companies, and a working consultant in various industries. Most recently, he was the CEO of Power Container, Inc, a socially responsible venture funded specialty packaging start-up. His early experience includes senior level operating and marketing roles with Fujitsu Limited and Dixie Consumer Brands. Ron serves as an advisor to students seeking career transition strategies in private equity, start-ups, and consumer and industrial products marketing and operations. Ron has a BBA in management from the University of Wisconsin and a MBA from Pace University.

Center for Women’s Leadership (Contact Jan Shubert, Director of CWL at X5585)

Teri Cavanagh

- Teri launched her company, TLC Connection, in 2004 as a response to the tremendous need expressed by corporations, government agencies, and nonprofits for effective strategies on how to market to women. In her previous position as senior vice president and director of the Women’s Financial Connection at Fleet Bank, she built “The Connection” from its inception at the former BankBoston and launched the $2 billion business initiative to assist women with capital, resources, and information to grow their businesses. A founding member of the Global Banking Alliance for Women, she is a key consultant to the World Bank on gender entrepreneurship.

Margaret Heffernan

- Margaret will be joining CWL as an executive in residence beginning January 2008. She is the author of two highly acclaimed books about women in business: The Naked Truth: A Working Woman’s Manifesto on Business and What Really Matters (2004) and How She Does It: How Women Entrepreneurs Are Changing the Rules of Business Success (2007). The CEO of five different businesses in the United States and the U.K., she was formerly a producer for the BBC, and is a regular contributor to the magazine Fast Company.

Saj-Nicole Joni

- Saj-Nicole is the author of The Third Opinion: How Successful Leaders Use Outside Insight to Create Superior Results and the founder of Cambridge International Group Ltd., a high-level advisory services firm. With more than 25 years of experiences as a senior executive and adviser in global corporations, she is widely regarded as one of the leading third-opinion advisers to leaders worldwide. She is a regular columnist for Forbes magazine.
Jane Magpiong

- Jane formerly served as president of The Private Bank of Bank of America, accountable for more than $2 billion in revenue and $170 billion in assets under management. She also held the role of northeast region president of the Private Bank. Prior to her Bank of America roles, she spent 14 years at Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco. A member of the Mass Mentoring Partnership Governing Board, she also has served as co-chair for the United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign and as vice chair for Today’s Girls Tomorrow’s Leaders.

Diane Mulcahy

- Diane joined McKinsey & Co.’s Corporate Finance practice in 2006, and leads the global knowledge efforts on capital markets. Her work includes serving as an expert resource to clients and consulting teams in Asia, Europe and North America on issues such as IPOs, privatizations, investor communications and capital markets strategy. Before joining McKinsey, Diane was the author of two books on venture capital. Her most recent book, Venturing Forward: A Practical Guide to Raising Equity Capital in Ireland is geared towards an audience of entrepreneurs and discusses the equity financing process from company formation to IPO. Prior to becoming an author, Diane was Vice President and an officer of American Century Ventures, Inc., a start-up corporate venture fund for an affiliate of JP Morgan, where she made investments of more than $60 million in a portfolio of eleven financial services companies.

Suzy Welch

- Welch is a noted author, commentator, syndicated columnist, and business journalist. Most recently, she is the co-author, with her husband Jack Welch, of WINNING, a New York Times and Wall Street Journal bestseller. She is the former editor of the Harvard Business Review and the author of numerous articles on leadership, change, creativity and organizational behavior as well as the contributor to several books on management.

Debra Facktor Lepore

- Debra Facktor Lepore is President of Air Launch LLC, a small entrepreneurial aerospace company headquartered in Kirkland, Washington. She is responsible for the external activities of the company, including development and execution of the company’s business plan, marketing plan, government relations and regulatory activities. Prior to joining Air Launch LLC, Ms. Lepore was Vice President of Business Development and Strategic Planning for Kistler Aerospace Corporation. In this position, she was responsible for identification and development of new business opportunities, as well as developing both short-term and long-term strategic planning. Ms. Lepore was a key player in the Kistler organization since joining the company in July 1997, previously serving as Director of Marketing and Manager of Payload Systems. She has a unique blend of technical, business, and international skills in entrepreneurial and established markets.

Ms. Lepore received the “2007 International Achievement Award” from Women in Aerospace and is on its Board of Directors. She was the 2007 Chair and is the 2008 Past Chair of the Aerospace Industries Association (AIA) Space Council, and is serving on the AIA’s Board of Governors. She is a member of the International Academy of Astronautics (IAA); an Associate Fellow of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics (AIAA); an alumna of the International Space University (ISU); an alumna of the Leadership Foundation Fellows Program; and a member of the Washington State Women’s Forum (WSWF). She is also an active leader in the community and in major professional organizations, including former Secretary of the IAA’s Commission on Space Policy, Economics and Law. She is the former chairperson of the American Astronautical Society Washington DC section and former Vice President of the Board of Washington Works. In April 2005, Ms. Lepore was appointed by U.S. Department of Transportation Secretary Norman Y. Mineta to serve a two-year term on the Commercial Space Transportation Advisory Committee (COMSTAC). She has been reappointed for a second term. Debra Facktor Lepore earned a Bachelor of Science degree (magna cum laude) in aerospace engineering and a Master of Science degree in aerospace engineering, both from the University of Michigan.

Office of Experiential Learning (Contact Mark Biddle, Director at X6149)

Jan Porell
- Jan has 25 years of executive experience in high technology, consulting, consumer products, and financial services. Jan is currently the Vice President of Marketing at Astrum Software Corporation and recently served as Vice President of Global Market Expansion at EMC. In her tenure at EMC Jan developed their professional services business, including methodology, storage assessment, and storage architecture services. As an Executive in Residence, Jan leads and advises students participating in the MBA Management Consulting Field Experience, the Business Consulting Alliance Program, and the Kauffman Entrepreneur Internship Program. Jan is a member of the Babson College Center for Women's Leadership.

Vanessa DiMauro
- Vanessa is an expert in interactive marketing, online community building and digital customer care and has a fifteen year track record of helping large and small organizations develop strategic marketing programs to better understand and service their customers. Vanessa’s work brings companies and their customers closer together with a deep experience base of building end-user communities. Her background in market research and experience as a senior management consultant enables her to tap into emerging markets, validate decisions with primary and secondary research – including peer networks – and then work with marketing, product management, and engineering to translate the needs of customers to powerful products, services and messages. She was recently named one of Boston’s most Influential Women in Technology by Women in Technology International (WITI) and is a member of the Society of Information Managers (SIM) and Women in Technology International.

Steven Sayer
- Steven graduate from NYU and emphasized marketing, economics and management. Following military service he worked with IBA and Magnavox where he was responsible for International Marketing and Sales and worked to secure governmental approval for technological innovation and established a sales agent network throughout Western Europe, South America, and Asia. In 1980 he joined the Arthur D. Little as a Senior Consultant specializing in Strategic Planning. As an entrepreneur he established two companies, The Center for Business Planning and Sonicsscrub, eventually selling the company to investors in 2004. He now resides in Vermont and works with community projects, government relations, and project management

Marty Ross
- Marty has over 34 years experience at Verizon Technology Organization, GTE Corporate Headquarters, and GTE Government Systems. At Verizon he was the Principal Member of Technical Staff in the Verizon Technology Organization at Waltham, MA and was responsible for the design and implementation of FIOS technology over the Verizon telecom footprint. Marty also led multiple studies with cross functional teams conducting a root cause analysis of power system issues following thermal events in the field and assessing deployment of fuel cells for backup power in Verizon’s outside plant. Marty’s early career was with the Systems Engineering Office at GTE Government Systems. Earlier in his career, he worked at Aberdeen Proving Ground, MD, and MIT Draper Laboratory on the Apollo Project. Marty has a PhD, MS, and BS degrees in Electrical Engineering from Northeastern University, Boston, MA in 1970, 1966 and 1964.

Linda Kanner

- Linda Kanner is a serial entrepreneur and advisor to CEOs of early-stage, high-growth companies. She is a founding partner of The Orchard Group, which operates as a turnkey advisory board to early-stage technology companies. Most recently she was CEO of HBN Shoe, a venture-funded footwear technology company. Prior to that, she was involved in two venture-funded Internet companies, first as CEO of First Business Financial (now OneCore.com) and then as the COO of edu.com, which she co-founded in 1998 with her son, raising $40 million and growing the company to 125 people before it was sold.

Previously she held senior positions in marketing and general management in large multinational companies including Bank of Boston, where she was Division Executive of Retail products and Consumer Credit, Bank of New England where she was EVP of Retail Banking, and J Baker Inc. where she was Group EVP of Footwear and International Sourcing and subsequently President of Parade of Shoes.

An active board member of both private and not-for-profit organizations, she serves on the board/advisory boards of several early-stage companies and is on the board of The Commonwealth Institute. She is an overseer of both the Huntington Theatre Company and the Beth Israel-Deaconess Hospital/Care Group where she serves on the Research Advisory Board.

Paul Saia

- Paul Saia is an Information Technology Manager / Consultant. His consulting work focuses on assisting client teams in rethinking the processes associated with managing the information technology function and developing of innovative technical education programs. These programs allow the corporate capacity to understand future technologies and their impact on business decisions. He is skilled at assisting technical specialists to understand business requirements and to develop strategies for their implementation. Paul has authored several articles on technology and the intersection of technology with management issues. Paul is skilled in defining, developing and leading multi-discipline technical support teams.

Ray Marcinowski

- Ray served as a Senior executive for Fidelity Investments, one of the world’s largest financial services providers having a key role as corporate “thought leader” that conceived and chaired the Global Operations Board with the mission to drive efficiencies, advance corporate-wide talent management, and pursue an integrated technology agenda for operations with 15,000 employees and $2.6 billion budget. Ray held numerous positions during his twenty years at Fidelity including chairing the Transfer Agent Board and helping to position Fidelity businesses for future success through strategic planning, IT platform redesign and process reengineering. Ray brings to his EIR a background that has: Broad experience heading operations, marketing/sales, client services and IT organizations and led mission-critical start-up and growth-focused organizations in the US and abroad. His expertise is in issues related to global strategy including business assessment, strategic planning, organizational and process re-engineering. Ray began his career with Exxon Company USA from 1978-1987. His educational background includes an MBA from the University of Chicago and a BA in Economics from Union College.

Babson College Fund and Cutler Center for Finance and Investments
(Contact Mark D’Annolfo at X6435)

Rick Spillane

- Rick Spillane is president of Strategic Advisers, Inc. (SAI), a subsidiary of Fidelity Investments. Fidelity is the largest mutual fund company in the United States, the No. 1 provider of workplace retirement savings plans and a leading online brokerage firm.

Mr. Spillane joined Fidelity in 1988 as an analyst and portfolio manager of Fidelity Select Technology Portfolio. He served as U.S. director of research from 1988 until 1994, when he was named chief investment officer for Fidelity International Limited in London, which was founded in 1969 to provide investment management services to investors outside the United States. In this role, Mr. Spillane oversaw the company's investment organization in Europe and acted as co-portfolio manager for the Fidelity Funds International Portfolio. Mr. Spillane returned to Boston in 1997 as group leader for the Income Growth Group within Fidelity Management & Research Company, subsequently overseeing international investing, then U.S. equity investing. He was named executive vice president and head of Global Investment Strategy in September 2002 and assumed his current role in June 2005.

Mr. Spillane also serves as vice chairman of Fidelity’s Political Action Committee, FMR Investment Committee and the Board of Fidelity Investments Life Insurance Company. He also serves as a trustee of the Fidelity Rutland Square Trust. Before joining Fidelity, Mr. Spillane was an analyst and portfolio manager for Eaton Vance Management in Boston for 10 years. Prior to Eaton Vance, he was a chemical engineer for Union Carbide Corporation in Tonawanda, New York, from 1972 to 1975.

Mr. Spillane serves as the Chairman of the Board of Xaverian Brothers High School and is a member of the Investment Committee for Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, a member of the Catholic Schools Foundation Investment Committee and a member of the Babson Graduate Advisory Board.

Born in 1951, Mr. Spillane received a Bachelor of Science degree in chemical engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, New York, in 1972. He received an MBA, with distinction, from Harvard Business School in 1977. Mr. Spillane is a Chartered Financial Analyst charter holder.

Hugh Crowther

- Hugh Crowther advises students in the Babson Investment Management Association and the Babson College Fund. Hugh has over 25 years experience with investment processes, technology and marketing. He has worked on the buy, sell, vendor and academic sides of the investment business.

He began his investment career in 1982 at Value Line, where he managed and marketed the Institutional Quantitative Equity Research business. From 1987 to 1995 he built and led the Analytical Software and Data Services group at Kidder, Peabody & Co., which developed and marketed global quantitative equity, fixed income, and derivative research, management, and trading products and tools. From 1995 to 2001 he developed and managed international portfolio analytics, equity, fixed income, and derivative research, risk management, global benchmarks, and market data systems for Fidelity Management & Research. Since 2001, he has been directing quantitative research, building and managing portfolio analytics and models; creating training and education; evaluating, acquiring, integrating and managing research and investment technology for asset management, hedge fund, broker / dealer, financial engineering, portfolio manufacturing, tax efficient structured equity, custody, and vendor consulting clients.

Jim Spencer
- James F. Spencer, CFA, a graduate of Babson College, is Chief Investment Officer of Cambridge Bancorp and its subsidiary Cambridge Trust Company. Cambridge Trust Company is a 113-year-old commercial bank. The company operates one of New England's leading trust and investment management operations with nearly $1.5 billion in assets under supervision.

Mr. Spencer has twenty-five years of experience in the investment management business. He began his investment management career in 1979 at Wells Fargo Investment Advisors in San Francisco. In 1981, he returned to the east coast to become Vice President and Research Analyst at Kidder Peabody where he covered specialty chemicals. Mr. Spencer later served as Director and Research Analyst in specialty chemicals at Schroder Wertheim and Company in Boston. Prior to joining Cambridge Trust Company, he was Chief Equity Officer for Atlantic Trust Company, formerly Pell Rudman Trust Company, and in 2001, he was the company's Chief Operating Officer. Institutional Investor Magazine named Mr. Spencer a member of its All American Research Team for eight years.

In addition to his professional responsibilities and accomplishments, Mr. Spencer is a youth soccer coach and club president in Wellesley, and he is a former trustee of the Dana Hall School.

Warren Johnson
- In his role as Executive in Residence Warren advises students in the Babson College Fund and the Babson Investment Management Association, Mr. Johnson is the President and Founder of Johnson Portfolio Group of Boston, investment consultants to institutions on asset strategy and allocation. Previously, Mr. Johnson was the Director of Investment Research and Planning for New England Mutual Life Insurance Company and the President of the Boston Security Analysts Society (BSAS). He is a graduate of Brown University and received his MBA from the University of Pennsylvania.

- Mark T. Donohue, the founder of Cleantech venture capital firm Expansion Capital Partners, has been appointed "clean Technology Entrepreneur-in-Residence" at Babson College, the first such position in the history of the school’s prestigious business program. Donohue will help design and teach Babson’s Clean Technology, sustainability and social entrepreneurship programs. Donohue will teach in the MBA and Executive Education programs, as he conducts research in the Arthur M. Blank Center for Entrepreneurship. His research will focus on developing a breadth of case studies on the key lessons learned from the rapidly expanding Cleantech sector. The case study series intends to be an invaluable tool for hundreds of colleges and executive education programs as demand for Cleantech education is rapidly expanding. Beyond his work with Babson, Donohue has been appointed Chairman Emeritus of Expansion Capital Partners, which he founded in 2001. The firm has raised two funds, with $100 million in its second fund - Clean Technology Fund II, LP. Donohue has sold most of his interest in the firm and passed all management responsibilities and board seats to his talented ex-partners Diana Propper and Bernardo Llovera. With this transition, Donohue will now be able to collaborate with enterprises beyond solely expansion-stage ventures, since he also sees great opportunity in select earlier-stage Cleantech enterprises.

Mr. Donohue has been a serial entrepreneur, having founded three successful money management firms, with the most recent being Expansion Capital Partners. He has specialized in building entrepreneurial businesses that enhance global sustainability while providing compelling financial returns. Mr. Donohue earned his B.S. in Investment Management, with honors, from Babson College in 1988.

Ranjan Pant

- Ranjan Pant is a Senior Managing Director of Perseus’ India affiliate. He is a highly experienced, global strategy management consultant and change management leader.

He is an expert in industrial processes, utilities and energy, technology, and life sciences. He founded a management consulting firm in Delhi that advises chief executive officers from several of the twenty largest companies in India on strategy and investments.

Mr. Pant spent twelve years at the Boston office of Bain & Company where he was a Partner and Vice President and led the firm’s worldwide Utilities/Energy practice. In this capacity, he worked closely with the Perseus Acquisition/Recapitalization Fund as one of Bain’s principal representatives in Bain’s role as Strategic Advisor to that fund. Mr. Pant was also Director of General Electric’s department of Corporate Business Development, where he led the Corporate Mergers and Acquisitions Group and implemented operational changes in the power generation, medical systems, and plastics businesses of GE throughout the United States and Europe.
Mr. Pant is on the board of the following companies in India: DSP Merrill Lynch Fund Managers; HDFC Standard Life Insurance; Mahindra USA Inc.; Mahindra (China) Tractor Co; and Pyramid Retail Ltd. He is a former member of the Board of Directors of Bharat Heavy Electrical Limited.

Mr. Pant received a B.E. with Honors from the Birla Institute of Technology & Science in Pilani, India and an MBA, Director's Honors List, from The Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania.

Bennaree Wiley

- Bennie Wiley most recently was President and Chief Executive Officer of The Partnership. The Partnership's unique mission is to develop professionals of color in Boston, increase their representation in Boston area businesses and institutions and enhance opportunities for their leadership potential. During her fifteen year tenure as CEO, she effectively expanded and advanced The Partnership's mission by creating a portfolio of services that strengthen Boston's capacity to attract, retain and develop talented professionals of color, and thereby, enhancing the competitive advantage of the region.

Wiley's experiences as a management consultant and entrepreneur were instrumental to building The Partnership into a sustainable and influential social enterprise. She served as a consultant with such corporations as Abt Associates, Contract Research Corporation, and Urban Systems Research and Engineering. As an independent consultant, she worked with non-profit organizations to build their capacity and refine their program delivery. She then combined her interests in business and child development with the establishment of a high-end toy store, Giocatolli, on Martha's Vineyard.

Wiley is currently a Director on the boards of the Dreyfus/Laurel Funds, the Pepsi African American Advisory Board and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts. Her civic activities include serving on the boards of Boston College, the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, Harvard Business School Alumni Board, the Boston Foundation, the Commonwealth Institute, and the Efficacy Institute.

Wiley is a frequent speaker on leadership, diversity, and professional development and has been the recipient of numerous awards and honors including the Pinnacle Award for Lifetime Achievement from the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce; Honorary Degree from Newbury College; Harvard Business School Distinguished Alumni Award from the African American Student Union; and selected as one of Boston's most powerful women by Boston magazine.

As a former director of the Crispus Attucks Children's Center she, along with her husband Fletcher (Flash) Wiley, were honored for 20 years of commitment by the dedication of a playground in their name. A graduate of Howard University and the Harvard Business School, she and her husband live in Brookline and have two children, Pratt and B.J.

Babson Adjunct Faculty or Center Directors (began as Executives in Residence)

Kavin Moody, Director, Center for Information Management Studies (Contact Kavin on X6346)

- Kavin Moody brings 25 years of experience working with Fortune 500 corporations to the program. Most recently, Kavin was a consultant with Andersen Consulting, where he served as the Information Technology liaison to various professional and academic institutions. Kavin is the executive director at the Babson Center for Information Management Studies and is an MBA
Center for Career Development adjunct, advising students who wish to pursue consulting careers. Kavin has served as a project advisor for numerous Babson Consulting Services programs.

Peter Cohan, Adjunct Faculty, Management Division and Project Advisor OEL (Contact Sheila Faherty on X 4390)

- Prior to starting his consulting firm, Peter S. Cohan & Associates, Cohan worked at CSC/Index with Jim Champy, co-author of Reengineering the Corporation and at the Monitor Company, a strategy consulting firm co-founded by Michael Porter, a professor at Harvard Business School. He also worked as an internal consultant in the banking and insurance industries. Cohan earned an MBA from Wharton, did graduate work in Computer Science at MIT and holds a BS in Electrical Engineering from Swarthmore College.

Kevin Mulvaney, Senior Lecturer, Entrepreneurship Division (Contact Stephanie Viera on X4420)

- Kevin is President of Strategic Advisors Group, a specialty consulting firm advising executives facing important strategic challenges and works with CEOs and Boards of Directors to achieve effective organizational governance. Until he resigned in 1997 to form his own consulting firm, Kevin was President of DRI/McGraw-Hill. Prior to DRI/McGraw-Hill, Kevin spent 22 years at Bank of Boston where he held a number of executive management positions including head of Corporate Banking. Kevin earned his MBA from Babson College in 1972 and his BS in economics from Boston College. Kevin serves on a number of boards including Nellie Mae and PNC Bank New England; he also serves on the boards of a number of non-profit organizations.

Walter Esquivel, Director, Glavin Center for Global Management (Contact Randee Lucia on X6103)

- Walter is the Director of The William F. Glavin Center for Global Management which is the organization that leads Babson College’s international initiatives and contribution to the advancement of global management education. Through its regional institutes in Asia, Europe and Latin America and the Office of International Programs, the Glavin Center creates a worldwide network of partner institutions from which new intellectual capital and experiential opportunities continually arise. With the mission to bring a global orientation to all facets of Babson’s management education and programs, the Glavin Center ensures that every Babson student receives the preparation they need to succeed in the global economy.

Michael May, Senior Lecturer, Management Division (Contact Sheila Faherty on X4390)

- Michael May has spent the last 30 years in various capacities within the management consulting industry. Most recently he was the Global Managing Partner of the Strategy Business for Accenture. In addition, Michael was the Senior Global Partner in charge of Thought Leadership and Innovation. In that role all research labs and global innovation programs reported to him. He spends most of his time working for clients in the area of business strategy, organization and resource management. He has focused on the financial services industry where his clients have included Citicorp, Merrill Lynch, Barclays, National Australia Bank and Sumitomo Bank. In addition, he has consulted for numerous other clients including General Electric, VF Corporation and United States Steel. Michael started his early career at A.T. Kearney where he focused on Insurance and Banking Industry Clients. His research has focused on Value Creation in Global Enterprises, Innovation Behavioral Systems and Corporate Risk Management. Michael has a B.S. and MBA from the University of Michigan.